TAG SALE SUCCESSFUL;
TO CONTINUE AT GAMES

Two More Trustees Will Be Appointed to Serve on Board

A Board of Trustees of the Student Union building fund has been selected as follows: Dr. Frank L. McVey, president of the University; D. H. Peak, business agent of the University; W. Emmet Milward, representative of Interfraternity council; Gordon Burns, president of O. D. K.; Prof. R. D. McIntyre, faculty advisor of O. D. K.; Dean Sarah G. Blanding, elected by Pan-Hellenic to represent sororities, and Mrs. Lolo Robinson, Mortar Board representative. An alumni member to the board and also a trustee for all the honoraries and professional organization will be appointed.

Action was started last year by which O. D. K. made public its plans for procuring funds. Several methods were determined, one of which was to have social and honorary fraternities and sororities donate a dollar from the initiation fee of each person taken in after the drive had started. Phi Kappa Tau, Delta Tau Delta, Alpha Sigma Phi and Kappa Kappa Gamma were the first ones to pledge their support, while O. D. K. and Mortar Board were the first honoraries to fall in line with the plan. Alpha Gamma Rho, Delta Zeta, Zeta Tau Alpha, Alpha Gamma Delta, Delta Delta Delta, Alpha Tau Omega, Chi Omega, and Kappa Delta also have pledged their support.

Among the honoraries, Tau Beta Pi, honorary scholastic engineering fraternity, and Kappa Delta Pi, professional education society, have joined the ranks of supporters, the latter donating $50 immediately upon joining the movement. Recent cash subscriptions also have come from Delta Delta Delta sorority and Delta Tau Delta fraternity. The fund had been increased previously by personal subscriptions from the faculty and various persons connected with the University. (Continued on page four)

They also have a few battery sets in good working condition that lack sufficient power for use in remote portions of the mountains but can be used in Lexington and vicinity with interesting success. Boys Get Chance To Fall or Rise At Dutch Dance

Mortar Board Sponsors Affair to be Held Saturday
in Pat Hall

By VIRGINIA ROBINSON
De jongens komen er gemak-kelijk af nu de meisjes voor zichzelf betalen—yeah, that's right. Don't you think so, too?

In case you've never been to Holland, you won't know what that means. It's merely the Dutch way of saying boys are lucky—yes, in more ways than one. But one must take advantage of opportunities.

Mortar Board took the conceit out of an innumerable number of concealed men at their Leap year dance a year ago and considerably aided those with an inferiority complex. Friday may see another reversal of form. Freshmen who have just about reached the peak of self-importance may be in for a fall, but they may be able to maintain their self-respect by breaking others if not broken themselves.

Yes, it is the Mortar Board "Dutch" dance where everyone pays and where anyone breaks, 4 to 6 p. m. Friday in Patterson hall.

If you want to hear a "line" that is a line break some boy that hasn't missed a dance for a couple of years. You'd be surprised how much he knows and how little you can get away with when you say, "Oh, this is a duty dance, eh?"

That big smile you always have on your face when you are broken, that little something that you always have ready to say when broken again—hear how foolish it all sounds when a boy says the same thing. He will, too.

It is worth it to just stand by and watch the expressions of the boys when they are stuck with some unwelcome blonde. What big grins they have if they are getting a rush! You'll be missing something if you are not there. Remember, anyone can go with or without a date and everyone breaks...Tot weezien.

Radio Program Is 4-H Club Feature

The state radio program will consist of music by Ruby Dunn, Gentry Shelton, and Bruce Poundstone of the University; talks by Dean Thomas P. Cooper and Miss Anita Burnam of the College of Agriculture; Miss Mattie Sue Bittersworth, Warren county, Murry Trumbo, Shelby county, and Sam Vandermeer, Breathitt county, 4-H club leaders. A 4-H club orchestra will play several selections.

R. P. Meacham Edits Bulletin on Geology Survey

Work Based on Samples from Wells Drilled Recently
in State

"A Stratigraphic Analysis of Some Deep Wells Records in Kentucky," by Reid P. Meacham, assistant professor of geology, is the title of a bulletin just issued by the Bureau of Mineral and Topographic Survey at the University. The study represents the first attempt in Kentucky to conduct a systematic examination of the deeply buried (non-outcropping) formations of the state by means of the "insoluble residue method."

Much interest has been shown in these deeper formations in Kentucky in connection with their exploration for oil and gas because of the profitable development of stratigraphically equivalent formations elsewhere. Professor Meacham's studies were based on samples from thirteen rather recently drilled wells, most of which were in central Kentucky.

With three exceptions, all drillings in Kentucky into the St. Peter or lower formations have not been producers as far as oil and gas were concerned. Wells drilled into this formation in the valleys of the Ohio, Licking, and Kentucky rivers are under sufficient head to furnish flowing wells, and a number of wells drilled in the Blue Grass have encountered water under pressure. The water from the St. Peter enters the formation, probably, in the Lancaster-Mineral Point area of southern Wisconsin, where it is more than 1000 feet above sea level.

FRAT COUNCIL HOLDS MEETING

W. Emmett Milward Named to Board of Trustees for Building
Fund

COMMITTEES CHOSEN

The Interfraternity council held its regular meeting Monday night at the Alpha Gamma Rho house and unanimously elected W. Emmett Milward to a position on the Board of Trustees for the Student Union Building fund. He will represent the interest of all fraternities on the campus that have subscribed $1 of each initiation fee to the building fund.

Mr. Milward was graduated from the University in 1926 with a B. S. degree. He was vice-president of the Men's Student council, a member of Delta Sigma Pi, Alpha Delta Sigma, and was the first president of Nu circle of Omicron Delta Kappa. He is a member of the firm of W. R. Milward, morticians, Lexington and is active in many civic organizations.

Gordon Burns, president of the organization, appointed a committee which was authorized by the Interfraternity council to seek legislation that will exempt fraternities who own their property from real estate tax on the basis that they house students the same as dormitories with no profit accruing to any individual connected with property. Members of the committee are Prof. J. Holmes Martin, chairman; Hunt Thomas, James Fahey, and R. Y. Long.

Back in 1922, while Mrs. Frank L. McVey was dean of women (she was Miss Frances Jewell then) and Miss Sarah Blanding was the director of physical education for women, that was the situation. But on April 17 of that year, the dean and Miss Blanding called a mass meeting of all the women students to discuss plans for the organization of Intramural games in which all the girls would have a chance to participate.

Thus the Women's Athletic association had its beginning. The next year interscholastic basketball was voted out and all attention was given to other sports which were hockey, soccer, baseball, rifle, riding and track. They played baseball on the field behind the old library and amused the male students very much with their huge ball.

Under Miss Helen Skinner, who succeeded Miss Blanding as director of physical education, the W. A. A. grew by leaps and bounds. Archery, (Continued on Page Four)

Co-ed Athletes Are Nonchalant About Dangers

Bruises, Sprains and Other
Injuries Do Not Slow
Up Contests

By HELEN ALFREY
White linens and tennis shoes have been stuffed in wardrobe trunks; woolen jackets and shin guards are being dragged out.

Cuts, bruises, sprained ankles, and "Charley horses" mean very little to more than 150 women athletes who have hung their tennis rackets on pegs and taken hockey sticks in hand.

It was not so very long ago that women took little part in athletics. It is true that the University of Kentucky had a girls' interscholastic basketball team, but that was an activity that included only about 15 women; the remainder of the women students were left out entirely.

Back in 1922, while Mrs. Frank L. McVey was dean of women (she was Miss Frances Jewell then) and Miss Sarah Blanding was the director of physical education for women, that was the situation. But on April 17 of that year, the dean and Miss Blanding called a mass meeting of all the women students to discuss plans for the organization of Intramural games in which all the girls would have a chance to participate.

WILDCATS LEAVE FOR GAME WITH CRIMSON TIDE

Big Blue Squad Begins Long Journey to Birmingham
for Annual Tilt

'BAMA FAVORED OVER
CONFERENCE LEADERS

Inspired 'Cats Show Pep
During Week's Practice
Against Frosh

By HENRY C. MCCOWN
With their offense still clicking and in high hopes of turning back the powerful Crimson Tide of Alabama, Coach Harry Gamage and his Big Blue football squad left Lexington at 7:15 last night for Birmingham where they will meet the Tide tomorrow at 2 p. m. on Legion field.

Although beaten twice this season, the 'Cats are still leading the Southeastern conference by virtue of two wins and no defeats. Alabama, although defeated last Saturday by the mighty Fordham Rams, tied earlier in the season by Mississippi, is considered to be one of the strongest teams in the South and will probably enter the game as top favorites.

The Big Blue has been working diligently all week on their newly acquired offense, as well as their powerful defense, and if they can show the same amount of improvement against Alabama that they displayed against Duke, the 'Cats stand a good chance of returning to the Bluegrass with a number of Red Elephant scalps on their belt.

The 'Cats came out of the Duke game in excellent physical condition with the exception of Jack "the Ripper" Jean who is still bothered with his injured shoulder. Jean has taken part in the scrimmages this week and will probably see plenty of action against Alabama.

The Wildcats went through their final heavy workout of the week Wednesday afternoon, when Coach B. L. Pribble's powerful yearling squad was placed against them, armed with Alabama plays. Although the Frosh had the services of Bert Johnson, the former Ashland star, they were unable to get away for any substantial gains.

After their hard fought loss against Duke last Saturday, the 'Cats seem to be inspired with their possibilities and are showing a new "zip" in their workouts. The line is charging with more ferocity, and the backs seem to be putting more drive in their runs.

The following members of the squad made the trip to Birmingham: centers, James and Dickey; guards, Darnaby, Aldridge, and Davidson; tackles, Wagner, Fish, Parrish, and Jacobs; ends, Kreuter, Rupert, Frye, Long, and Jackson; quarterbacks, Jean, Shanklin, and Miller; halfbacks, Ayers, Bach, McMillan, Pritchard, Walker, and Cassidy; fullbacks, Kercheval, Hay and McCool.

The probable starting lineup is as follows:

Kentucky	Pos.	Alabama
Rupert	LT	Gandy
Wagner	LG	Lee
Darnaby	LT	Hughes
James	C	Francis
Davidson	RG	Kirkland
Jacobs	RT	Dildy
Frye	RE	Leach
Jean	QB	Moseley
Ayers	LB	Howell
Pritchard	RB	E. Walker
Kercheval	FB	Hughes

GENTLEMEN, OR?

We dislike to be eternally harping on what you should and should not do at the football games, but it seems to be absolutely necessary. First it was a plea to the students to show more pep and enthusiasm at the games, then an admonition to members of SuKy to "Consider the Spectator," and now we come to the matter of the throwing of bottles at the games!

The very phrase "throwing of bottles" sounds childlike and unworthy of the consideration of college students; nevertheless since a number of persons have persisted in this pastime, it becomes necessary to bring it to the attention of the student body.

It seems needless to remind anyone of the danger that bottles thrown on the field bring to the players. Anyone, drunk or sober, certainly should have enough respect for the members of his team not to expose them to the dangers of broken glass. In addition the very principle of the thing is degrading to the students and other spectators, and through them to the University.

At last Saturday's game Professor Lampert alone retrieved no less than a half dozen bottles which were heedlessly thrown from the stands onto the field. After the first one was thrown, it seemed to be some sort of an amusing game for some imbeciles to continue hurling bottles on the field just to see some conscientious person walk out and carry them off.

Most of us realize the reputation that most southern schools hold already in the minds of the people of the country at large in regard to the behavior of the crowds at football games. It is an absolute certainty that this sort of behavior is not going to add, other than negatively, to this reputation.

We recently read that two southern institutions (and we don't mean insane asylums) were forced to pass resolutions prohibiting the sale of soft drinks at games in other than paper containers. This action was made necessary to prevent the usual injuries from flying bottles that had occurred at the games.

Is the University of Kentucky going to be forced to do this? We appeal to your common-sense, courtesy, and integrity to prohibit in the future such insane and idiotic actions as have been brought to your attention in this editorial.

A SURE ENOUGH TEACHER

The following editorial appeared in a recent issue of the Stanford Interior Journal. It is reprinted in The Kernel over the blushing protests of our modest instructors:

"The Lexington Herald's Sunday edition carried a picture of Enoch Grehan, professor of journalism at the University of Kentucky, in a series of 'University Personalities' along with something of Grehan's activities in the University and the various societies that interest the average college man.

"Enoch Grehan is a sure-enough teacher in his chosen line. As an honor man at Transylvania in English, one of its best speakers and debaters, he led his class and his school. Soon after graduation, if not indeed before, he became associated with Lexington newspapers, where he learned actual in daily practice, lessons he has been able to impart to Kentucky youths seeking a career in the newspaper field.

"The College of Journalism at the University of Kentucky has been almost as successful in having its graduates meet the test of modern demands as Oom Paul Anderson's college of engineering. It's graduates have made good. Keen Johnson, at Richmond, is one of them. Sterling Towles, at Danville, is another. The Courier-Journal office is full of them, and all over Kentucky they are managing, editing or reporting for newspapers.

"We believe it is not too much to say that the success of this college has been due to the fact that its head and its teachers have had practical experience in what they are teaching. Grehan was a reporter on the old Lexington Transcript under the late Colonel W. P. Walton. He was head of the news desk on the Leader, when the late Sam J. Roberts owned it. He was city editor and managing editor and paragrapher on the Lexington Herald, with Desha Breckinridge, and there is hardly a newspaper situation that could arise with which he is not fully competent to deal.

"Associated with him is Miss McLaughlin, a thoroughly experienced and practical newspaper woman, and Victor R. Portmann, who is the third member of the faculty of the college. Though not a native Kentuckian, as are the others, he won the regard of the Kentucky Press association to such an extent that he is a leader in that organization and editor of its official publication.

"We are not an opponent of 'book larnin' but if we had our choice, in the matter of newspaper teaching, between a highly educated teacher and a man who had had actual newspaper experience, we would take the experienced every time. But when the experienced newspaper man combines with his knowledge of actual work on a newspaper a high degree of education, that combination is one that is bound to succeed, and that is why Grehan and his associates have made a real success of the College of Journalism at the University of Kentucky."

A VITAL QUESTION

The people of Lexington, on next Tuesday, November 7, will be called upon to decide a vital question in the life of their city. The N. R. A. Public Works Bond issue comes up for the decision of the people. By their vote they will decide whether or not they are good business men and women; if they are willing to put the common good above the interest of the individual; and whether the tax rate should be increased 10 cents or 26 cents.

In regard to the first factor mentioned, it is doubtless true that this bond issue is good business from every angle. What business man, if told he could borrow money at the rate of four per cent with 30 per cent given to him as an outright gift, would refuse it? The answer is quite obviously, none. That is exactly the proportion the Federal Government is making to the city of Lexington. Out of a total grant of $1,875,000, the national government will give as a direct gift $562,500, on which there will be no interest or repayment. The remainder of the amount is to be paid in installments, each year for 25 years, and beginning in 1939. The city needs all the improvements that have been planned. It is safe to say that this is the best bond issue on which Lexington has ever had a chance to vote.

Times such as have been known in the past several years, demand that the common interest be placed above the interest of the individual. This is certainly not the time or the place for consideration of the interests of a selfish few individuals. This Public Works program will give jobs to 1,400 local men, for a period of two years. Eighty per cent of this money or $1,500,000 must be spent for labor, as this is required by the national government. Think what that amount of money would mean to the business of Lexington. It would mean that business in this city would be materially aided. Better business means prosperity and this certainly is something all will agree is highly desirable.

The tax increase for the next five years is small. The present city commissioners believe that it will be unnecessary to increase the taxes to take care of the 10 per cent rise. Interest on $1,312,500 at four per cent is $52,500 which is all that will be paid for the next five years. If this is not adopted the city will have to spend approximately $156,000 for relief funds. This necessitates an increase in the tax rate of something like 26 cents. Then, too, would you rather have new sewers, a new jail, two new community centers, and a public health center, for a possible 10 cent increase in the tax rate or absolutely no improvements for a 26 cent increase?

Are the people of Lexington, good business men and women? Are they willing to put the public good above the private individual gain? Do you desire an increase of ten cents in the tax rate or a 26 cent increase? All these questions you will be called upon to decide on next Tuesday, November 7. Consider these questions before you vote!

A recent experiment proved that few college students could spell correctly the word "cognac," but we wager that they would know how to handle the stuff, if opportunity afforded.

There is really no excuse for us poor fellows walking, when it is so easy to win a nice, new automobile in word-building contests via radio.

Were The Kernel to please every reporter who aspires to see his name over a column, it would have to edit a 20 page daily, devoted exclusively to features.

OCTOBER DAY

Oh, it was a splendid October morning! She smiled happily to herself as she started across the campus, and noticed with genuine pleasure how lovely the trees were, decked in their gay multi-colored fall wear. The breeze whisked about her, toying with her hair, pulling at her smart fur jacket, but its brisk frivolity amused her. She stopped at the entrance to the Botanical gardens and looked at her watch. She'd have to wait a few moments for him, but she didn't mind that.

Suddenly a bell rang, and figures poured out of the building, scurrying away to another class. She began to walk slowly about, searching for a familiar gray topcoat which somehow evaded her eager eyes. The minutes went speeding by, and then another bell marked the beginning of a new class hour.

Slowly she walked away. Queer how cold the wind felt—and the trees weren't as lovely as she had thought...the leaves were all falling to the ground. Just another October day...she shivered in the sudden grayness.

RED ELEPHANTS ON THE WALL.... -by Craddock

Graceful and pretty are the words describing this youthful work. 1932. Biography, by S. N. Behrman.

The heroine is a charming easy-going woman who has had many casual love-affairs and won some fame as a portrait painter. Richard Kurt, young journalist, engages Marion to write her biography. The complexities which arise because of various interested persons produce many good lines. This was one of the most successful plays in New York last winter. 1933. (Rental Collection).

Both Your Houses, by Maxwell Anderson.
The play is based upon the story of a young idealistic Nevada teacher elected to Congress. Beaten by combined forces of the old order of corruption, he attempts to outwit the lobbyists at their own game and is defeated. In plain words it is a crook play full of witty remarks. The author was the winner of the 1932 Pulitzer prize. 1933. (Rental Collection).

TRAVEL

Arctic Village, by Robert Marshall.
The author spent more than a year among the inhabitants of Koyukuk Valley, Alaska, about the only community of this precise sort on earth. The book is not only an interesting account of life—rough, raw, and ready, where a few happy men and women eke out an existence, but it is a gold mine for sociology students, because of the wealth of detail about social relations in a simple settlement. It has humor as well as dignity and nobility. 1933. (Browsing Room).

Twenty Years A-growing, by Maurice O'Sullivan.

Growing up as a native of the Basket Islands, which lie off the coast of Ireland, the author recalls memories of every aspect of life on the Island—fishing, rounding up sheep, hunting thrushes in the dark, match-making, etc. All of it has a high spirited freshness and sensibility of nature. 1933. (Browsing Room).

AUTUMN CHANT
Now the autumn shudders
In the rose's root,
Far and wide the ladders
Lean among the fruit.

Now the autumn clammers
Up the trellised frame
And the rose remembers
The dust from which it came.

Brighter than the blossom
On the rose's bough
Sits the wizened, orange,
Bitter berry now.

Beauty never slumbers;
All is in her name,
But the rose remembers
The dust from which it came.

PETITE PIECE

By LORRAINE LEPERE

Sallie Brown is a girl you all know. Every University girl isn't just like her, but every University has its good sized group of Sallies. She goes in for a lot of activities, lots of the boys like her, she's a sorority woman, spends every moment of the day going places about the campus and in general keeping in the swim.

Sallie's not at home much, for various school functions keep her pretty busy, and when she is there, she has things to think about, and to do, so her family doesn't see much of her. Being an attractive girl, and having a sharp tongue makes those snappy comebacks part of her list of careless, unintentional remarks. All very well around school, but one night she happened to make one of them to her mother. Sallie's mother is the type of woman who does everything on earth to see that her little daughter has the things she needs and wants most, and the remark hurt.

There followed one of those typical mother and daughter scenes, wherein Sallie tried to say that she meant nothing by her careless behavior, and her mother pointed out that such indifference were not uncommon, they had been passed out before. They were getting nowhere fast when her father interfered.

"Sallie," he said, "don't you suppose that after living 40 years we have something to offer you?" "They ought," said the mother, "to close up that school entirely, and put you all to work. Let you find out what it's like to be on your own, to see how far all you smart children who are so sufficient unto yourselves would get."

"What I'm getting at," continued her father, "is this. It costs money to keep you in school. Money to keep you clothed. Money for your sorority, money for everything else. But we'll skip that. We think the University is a great place, and all that, but if you weren't in it, we'd have practically no interest in it at all. You see?"

"Of course, dad." "Well then. You can become the greatest student they ever had out there. You can make a million dollars, and become the finest woman teacher in the world, and we'll be proud of you. But what satisfaction do we get out of you, we parents? Where is our compensation except in what you do for us in return?"

"You've had us too long. You've taken us for granted. You've missed the finer appreciation that is due us. When you're in a tight place, we're here. We want to be your pals, but you never think of cultivating our friendship."

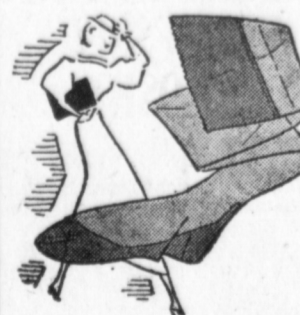

"Somehow, you give impressions of toleration for us. It's all a part of this new generation, I suppose. I've never quite understood it until now, but I think this must be a good example of your attitudes. I hate to pull the 'when I was a boy' one on you, but we showed a respect for our folks that you youngsters have skipped. Now, I've used a lot of good energy and talked for eleven minutes by my watch, what do you make of all I've said?" "I think," said Sallie, "that you mean that in going places and doing things, I have thought more of my own personal good times and impressions I am making on other people than I have of you and mother. I have missed the thing that makes the wheels go around for me, which is that you and mother are living your own younger days over again in me."

"Good. Exactly the point. Change that radio program, will you, monkey?"

At last Kentucky has been given a break by dame fortune, because the long-feared Crimson Tide is in a badly crippled condition, if one is to believe the reports that emanate from the Capstone. Two right half-backs in succession have been injured and will not be in shape for the Big Blue. "Bubber" Walker was the first, and he was hurt in the Tennessee fray. Then Howard Chappelle, another brilliant ball totter, was incapacitated in the Fordham battle last week. Now an unknown find, "Angleface" Angelich, is carrying the burden at right half. Several of the big boys in the line are nursing injuries and may not see service.

But as far as losing valuable players goes, the Cats have had their portion of losses this year. First, Murphy received a broken sinus bone during the Cincinnati game; then Gilmer was declared ineligible; and now Bill Tichenor has suffered a re-fracture of a vertebra in his neck. All these men were valuable to Gamge and the loss leaves him in a tough spot as far as reserve tackles are concerned.

Although the Tide lost to the Fordham Rams Saturday, the score was not decisive enough to injure the reputation of Alabama to any appreciable degree. The Tide is still plenty potent and will be plenty hard to beat. From here it looks like another Tide victory, although Kercheval and his teammates will give those Red Elephants a mighty uncomfortable afternoon. Efforts to break the Alabama jinx have failed in past years but the law of averages which failed to help the Big Blue against Wallace Wade may have a change of heart and may come to the aid of the Cats Saturday. Eleven times are too many times to bow to one team and a Wildcat triumph would not be altogether unexpected.

Ralph Kercheval has not received enough mention in the columns of this paper for his great playing this season. Kerch is conceded by most of the sports writers who have witnessed his play to be the greatest kicker in the nation, and by many to be one of the greatest backs in the nation.

Niel Plummer, athletic publicity director, has sent copies of favorable comment on Kercheval to all the outstanding sports writers in the nation, and to Ted Husing and Bob Newhall of sports radio-casting fame.

Several outstanding attractions are billed for Saturday among Southern teams. Vanderbilt and Tech offer perhaps the closest battle. Tech however should win after a stubborn first half. Georgia.

KITTENS TO PLAY TENNESSEE
FROSH

By NORMAN GARLING

Inspired with confidence by their overwhelming victory over the Vanderbilt Rats, and clicking with uncanny precision, the Kentucky Kittens are ready for their battle with the Tennessee yearlings tomorrow at Knoxville.

Along with their preparation, the Kittens have also helped the Varsity get into shape for the Alabama encounter. From present indications, it looks as though the Kittens will repeat last year's performance and beat the Baby Vols again, but by a large margin. Led by that famous quartet of Johnson, Kouns, Farris, and Walker, the Kittens have been going through the varsity line rather freely for the past week.

Tuesday and Wednesday were the heavy days for both teams, and the scrimmages were quite a spectacle. During the first part of Tuesday afternoon's practice, the Kittens ran signals and learned the Alabama plays. Later on, however, Gamge called on the yearlings to scrimmage with the Varsity. The Kittens used the Alabama plays to a good advantage, and twice, within the first eight minutes of play, Johnson rounded left end for an 80-yard run down the field.

COURT SCHEDULE
RELEASED BY
RUPP

Coach Adolph Rupp's Wildcat basketballers have been practicing almost two weeks now, but up until Wednesday afternoon they had shown little improvement over the first few days of practice. Wednesday, a new combination was tried out and for the first time the team clicked like past Wildcat teams have.

Of course it is much too early to expect mid-season form or anything like that, but they should have displayed a better brand of ball than had been shown previous to Wednesday's and Thursday's practice.

Coach Rupp has released the following varsity schedule for the 1933-34 season, with some dates yet to be filled:

Dec. 5—Alumni here.
Dec. 9—Georgetown, here.
Dec. 13—Open.
Dec. 16—Marshall, there.
Dec. 19—Mississippi, there.
Dec. 22—Tulane, there.
Dec. 29—Open.
Jan. 2—Open.
Jan. 6—Open.
Jan. 9—Sewanee, here.
Jan. 12—Sewanee, there.
Jan. 13—Tennessee, there.
Jan. 20—Open.
Jan. 27—Tennessee, here.
Feb. 1—Alabama, there.
Feb. 2—Vanderbilt, there.
Feb. 10—Georgia Tech, here.
Feb. 17—Vanderbilt, here.

The varsity mentor also announced that freshman basketball will start Monday, November 6. All freshman basketball players are requested to report at the Alumni gym ready for practice at 7:15 p. m.

tumbling, tap dancing, tennis, volleyball, camping, and horseback-riding were added to the list of sports. The present point system was worked out and the first Play day was held.

By the point system the girls are awarded "K" letters, pins and numerals when they acquire a required number of points, which are given to the participants of each sport. Play day is now an annual event in which women athletes from all the neighboring colleges are invited to participate.

The local W. A. A. is a member of three national organizations. They are the United States Field Hockey association, Women's Division of National Amateur Athletic confederation, and the Athletic Conference of College Women.

Miss Rebecca Averill now assists the association with the same enthusiasm that was shown by the organizers. Other faculty advisors are Miss Elandring, Mrs. Server, and Mrs. Holmes.

All the women of the University are invited to join the Women's Athletic association, which plays at various sports every afternoon.
